

📰 Article Usage & Copyright Notice

The articles on this website come from Diana Magazine's personal collections and are shared here for readers to enjoy. They are presented for viewing and reading in a respectful, reader-friendly way. We appreciate your interest in these materials and encourage you to explore them responsibly.

✅ Sharing Guidelines

Readers are welcome to share these articles on their Facebook pages as long as they give proper credit to Diana Magazine. Clear attribution matters because it shows respect for the original source and helps preserve the integrity of the content. When sharing, please make sure the source is easy to identify and accurately acknowledged. Proper credit is essential whenever these articles are reposted or referenced.

⚠️ Usage Restrictions

These articles are not to be used to build content on your own website or blog. The content is protected and should not be republished, repurposed, or reused elsewhere without permission. Please respect these terms and avoid adapting the articles for other publishing platforms. Our goal is to keep the material shared in a way that honors the original collection and its source.

> In summary: Share on Facebook with credit to Diana Magazine. Do not republish on your own website or blog.

We kindly request that our watermarks remain intact. As active members of various Diana groups, we are vigilant in monitoring the usage of our content. Should we discover our material posted without proper attribution, we will reach out via email to request its removal from your page or site.

Thank you,

Danielle and Dale
Editors of The Diana Magazine